How did life improve for people living in Bangladesh's haor (wetland) regions between 2013-2020?

31% reduction in child marriage Over half of girls were married initially, which dropped to 22%

90% of women involved in household decisions
15% of village development organisation members took part initially, which rose by 75%

88% of students accessing primary education 63% were enrolled initially, which rose by 25%

89% of households accessing improved sanitation facilities12% had access initially, which rose by 77%

BRAC's Integrated Development programme worked in four sub-districts during this period; Itna, Baniachong, Derai and Khaliajuri, comprising 914, 273 people.

94% of people accessing healthcare from formal institutions
Less than 31% had access initially, which rose by 63%

100% increase in annual income per household BDT 86,000 (USD 1,003) was earned initially, which rose to BDT 176,000 (USD 2,062)

22% gross revenue from agricultural activities
4% was generated initially, which rose by 18%

73% of households accessing at least one basic service
15% households had access initially, which rose by 58%

